WE PROPOSE A TOUR OF THESE TWO EXHIBITIONS

The World is forest: This exhibition invites environmental awareness of the importance of forests through an immersive science fiction experience. The title of the work is inspired by the book "The Name of the World is Forest" by Ursula K. Le Guin, a writer and author who revolutionised science fiction through literary hybridisation with other fields of knowledge such as anthropology, feminism and ecology.

Barricading the icesheets: Repropose the Industry, Reclaim the Planet. An investigation into the global movement for climate justice. The exhibition presents films, photographic works and installations resulting from a decade of research by artist and filmmaker Oliver Ressler recording and documenting exemplary mobilisations, activities, assemblies and working meetings of climate movements around the world.
